DIVORCE SOLUTION MEDIATION SERVICE Inexpensive Uncontested Divorce Helping families since 1995

Regardless of lifestyle, socioeconomic or cultural status, navigating the court system throughout a divorce proceeding can be a challenging task for anyone. Along with all the benefits there are when using the mediation process, these challenges can be achieved with the assistance of a divorce mediator."

- Mediation is confidential. Any discussions are “without prejudice” and remain private.
- In mediation, you decide what is best for you and your family. Unlike the litigation process through the court and a Judge, the mediator cannot force a decision on you.
- Mediation is an informal format, much more so than litigation and arbitration. It allows both parties to engage and participate more openly.
- The process is voluntary and must come to a joint agreement at the end, with the help and guidance of the mediator. This means that the outcome of your divorce is in your and your partner’s hands.
- The mediator can focus both parties on their needs and interests, without getting bogged down by procedures and stated positions.

This enables open dialogue and the ability to resolve issues more effectively.
