GETTING TO KNOW CPX

The CPX's roots go back to the 1940's when several retired female teachers who had taught in Halifax City, formed a social group meeting at their various homes. This group of women grew in numbers as the years progressed.

In 1953, the year of Queen Elizabeth II's coronation, the group wanted to honour this very royal occasion by naming their "teachers" club CPX.

C FOR CORONATION
P FOR PEDAGOGY
X FOR RETIRED

CPX celebrated its fiftieth anniversary in 2003. That year the annual Christmas Dinner included turkey and all the trimmings and a beautiful anniversary cake. Last but not least, many of the past presidents of the organization were in attendance. That same year, the members included wooden hearts to be painted by the residents of the Scotia Nursing Home in their annual gift giving project.

CPX holds three social meetings a year; one in the fall, one at Christmas and one in the spring. Each year at the Christmas Dinner the group holds a minute of silence following a reading of the names of members who have died during the year. Sick and shut-in members are visited during the Christmas Season and are given a potted plant and/or a greeting card.

The Special Christmas project each year is the donation of gifts to the residents of the Scotia Nursing Home. Each member is asked to donate a gift for a male or a female resident. The members also include all the trimmings for gift wrapping. This year Elaine Saulnier from the Recreation Department of the Scotia Nursing Home accepted the gifts on the residents' behalf. She expressed her heartfelt thanks for the groups' continuing support and assured the membership that many residents would go without if it were not for the Christmas Giving Project. The thoughtfulness and generosity of CPX members helps to make Christmas Day an extra special day at the nursing home.

In 1956 a group of retired teachers were looking to establish an association of retirees across the province. They looked to CPX for their inspiration sowing the seeds for the current RTO. CPX continues to exist today under the umbrella of the RTO. Any female teacher who has taught in the "old" city of Halifax automatically becomes a member of CPX. Due to The Protection of Privacy Act CPX does not have access to the names and numbers of the new female retirees from the city of Halifax. If you would like to join the group in good food and good memories please contact: Mary Hammond, President CPX, Phone 852-3146 OR Barbara Burke, Chair, Telephone Committee, CPX, Phone 443-3275

The group looks forward to you joining them at their spring luncheon. The time, place, and date are to be announced. Keep spreading the word!

Elaine Saulnier of Scotia Nursing Home receives gifts on behalf of the residents from Mary Hammond, president of CPX (center) and her executive including Helen Cianfaglione, treasurer; Sue Kent, vice-president; Linda Partington, secretary; Yvonne Bennett, member at large and Barbara Burke, member-at-large.

FROM the PRESIDENT of RTO

Dear Fellow Retirees:

Due to health related matters President Earl Muise has been unable to fully participate in the RTO for the past couple of months. He asked me to chair meetings in his absence.

Because of these health related issues, on Sunday, January 27, Earl submitted his formal resignation to the executive of the RTO. I would be remiss if I did not, on your behalf, extend to Earl our heartfelt thanks for his valiant effort to fulfill his mandate.

At the direction of the executive I will continue to chair with the assistance of Phil Hughes until the elections at the Annual General Meeting. If for any reason you wish to contact me feel free to do so.

On behalf of retirees across the province I would again like to wish Earl good health and a sincere thank you for all his hard work.

*Chair RTO,
Tom Gaskell*

From the Editor

It has been a blustery start to 2008! But that has not held back our retirees. They are out in our communities contributing in countless ways. I have had the pleasure of hearing from a number of retirees about their experiences after retirement and am pleased to have some of their stories appear in this edition of the newsletter. I hope that their stories will delight and inspire you and will prompt you to tell us your story or the story of a retired teacher that you know who continues to provide leadership where he/she lives.

I would also like to express my regret at the resignation of our President, Earl Muise. I know that the RTO has greatly benefited from the contributions that Earl has made to the organization and I wish to personally thank him for his guidance. Bon chance Earl!

MEDOC® OUT-OF-COUNTRY / PROVINCE TRAVEL COVERAGE

If you plan to travel outside of Nova Scotia or Canada, you should be aware that additional health insurance may be needed if you are injured or have an unexpected illness. For your information, when travelling outside of Canada, reciprocal agreements will cover most physician fees and hospital accommodations. However, should you require ambulance transportation to a hospital for emergency care or should your condition require you to be returned home, MSI will not extend coverage to allow for payment of these services.

- Medical Services Insurance (MSI) provides physician services in the case of an emergency at a rate equal to the fees paid to Nova Scotia physicians.
- Nova Scotia Department of Health provides coverage for ward room accommodations based on the room rates in Nova Scotia.

The Government payments are made in CANADIAN FUNDS based on the date of service. The remaining balance and difference in exchange rate can be substantial and is YOUR RESPONSIBILITY.

Therefore, coverage provided by Medical Services Insurance (MSI) and the Nova Scotia Department of Health may not be enough. If you have a sudden and unexpected sickness or injury, it could cost you thousands of dollars.

THERE IS LIFE AFTER RETIREMENT!

Retirement has been anything but boring for Karl Hicks of Dominion, Nova Scotia. After thirty years as a teacher and administrator, Karl turned in his keys thirteen years ago and has been on the go ever since.

Having learned to play bridge at university, his fascination for the game became a passion. Beginning as a club director, he rose through the ranks to become a tournament director for the American Contract Bridge League. He is in charge of all Maritime tournaments, frequently runs tournaments in Bermuda and has directed at many North American Championships and the World Youth Olympiad.

Since his retirement, Karl has been able to play competitively and this July, partnered with Brian Alexander of Fredericton, NB, went to the North American Championships in Nashville, TN where they won the three day Bruce Life Master Pairs and the six day Mini-Spangold Teams events. This is the first time that Canadians have ever won two consecutive North American Titles.

Karl is a certified bridge teacher and has taught the game to hundreds of Cape Bretoners over the years. His wife, Kerry, who retired from teaching six years ago, was one of his students. They are both life masters who are partners in life but not at the bridge table.

They teach bridge aboard ship on a very exclusive cruise line and their travels have taken them to such wonderful destinations as Australia, New Zealand, the Caribbean, the Mediterranean, South America and the Baltic on cruises ranging from 30 to 57 days. Their next adventure is a 29 day cruise from Singapore to Auckland.

Karl encourages all retirees to learn the game. It is both challenging and social and can be enjoyed at any level of ability. Bridge is one of the most inexpensive pastimes and can be played in almost every country in the world regardless of physical ability. He also points out that of the literally thousands of bridge players that he has known over the years (regardless of bridge prowess), he knows of only half a dozen of whom, who developed Alzheimers Disease.

June Jain — A Retired Teacher has seen major changes in the education system

By Brent Fox

The Advertiser/NovaNewsNow.com

It started half a century ago in a one-room school in southern Ontario. And she has seen a lot of changes in education since.

Educator June Jain has been teaching in the Valley for 37 years. But she got her teaching start in Ontario 50 years ago.

She returned home Sept. 21 to address the 150th anniversary of the Thorndale Fair on her experience starting out as a teenage educator in a one-room school—Wellburn School—in 1957. There were 16 one-room schools in that section.

Located in an agricultural community northeast of London, the little school hosted 30 students in eight classes.

She had to teach all subjects. And there was no telephone at the school in case of emergencies. As well, she was only a couple of years older than some of the Grade 8s.

The 19-year-old was taken aback by her visit by the school inspector H.G. Scholtzhauer, a huge man “who filled the doorway.... The kids and I were terrified.” She recalled that he pointed out that records were to be kept in ink, not by ballpoint pen.

Despite his intimidating appearance, he was quick to sigh off her report at the end of the year.

The new teacher boarded with a couple in town and walked a mile or so to and from school, carrying a heavy brief case and often a number of scribblers. She soon lost nearly 15 pounds in five weeks and decided to board closer to the school.

After two years, Jain then went to teach grades 6, 7 and 8 at a three-room school at Avon in a nearby township.

Jain recalled that, it being a farming area, many of the Grade 8 students would be out of school all of September; they were too busy working on their tobacco farms. “I never saw half the Grade 8s until the end of September.”

But it’s telling that one of the students, she noted, went on to become the head of the economics department at the University of Western Ontario.

Another, who had to pick tobacco, has his own transport company. She had stayed after hours to help him.

And in Ontario during that time, Grade 8 students had to write departmental exams to qualify to go on to high school.

In those early days, she found, “if you get the school janitor and the parents on side, you’d be on your way.”

She and husband Nirmal, an associate professor and head science library at Acadia University, came to Kentville 37 years ago. Most of her work in the Valley was as a Grade 5 and 6 teacher at Kings County Academy (KCA), Kentville.

And interesting times often unfolded there, too. One year, when she taught a Grade 6 class, she and another teacher Brian Milberry took the students to the French territory of St. Pierre and Miquelon, off the Newfoundland coast.

Heavy fog made the three-day trip a five and a half-day adventure. Thankfully, Milberry had his credit card along to feed the kids for the extra time.

When the travellers finally made it home, parents were there to greet them, with red roses for Jain and a medal for Milberry. “They were so gracious.”

Jain retired in 2001, after receiving a number of awards over the years. She received the Cultural Life Award in Education in 1992; the following year she received the Reader’s Digest Leadership in Education Award. In 2000, the Halifax Progress Club gave her the Women of Excellence Award. And she received the Queen Elizabeth II Coronation Medal in 2003.

Jain still volunteers for Somerset Elementary School and, before its closure this year, the Kings County Christian School. Of the closure, she said, “that broke my heart.” But they are hoping to start again next year.

Asked what she sees as big trends she noted a decline in the work ethic, and respect for the teacher.

There is also a move away from reading books. In the past, children could read their readers if they had a slow time during the day.

Public school parents and educators have to be aware of two things that are increasing—home schooling and private schools.

Parents—many of them not even that well off—are willing to make big sacrifices so their children can attend private school to get the necessary skills.

This should be a concern for public school educators and parents.

All that said, Jain said that a teacher is successful if he or she helps children become good citizens with values and a work ethic.

The Retired Teachers Organization is...
